Part II. NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION

a. Objective:
   To increase community awareness about the complex problems involved in applying the "theory" of criminal justice in very real situations.

b. Methods:
   Santa Barbara City College has a complete television studio on its campus which has been in operation for nearly two years. We regularly produce two distinctively different types of programs for community television aired each week during the school year: a program focusing on Chicano Studies, and one exploring issues of local interest. The latter, "SBCC Public Affairs Forum", is produced by Dr. Peter O. Haslund, the nominee for the position of Director. It has looked at a wide variety of topics of local interest including such diverse topics as off-shore oil development, political campaigns, alternatives to the traditional family unit, eastern religions. It is proposed that this weekly program be given over almost entirely during the Fall to a weekly examination of criminal justice as it is applied in our community. The viewing audience will be invited to participate in these programs by coming to the studio and posing questions to those being interviewed. Care will be taken to insure the widest possible participation. Because of the large number of Spanish-speaking residents, the programs will be translated whenever possible. In addition, law enforcement officials (police chief, sheriff, district attorney, public defender, etc.,) will be invited to participate (1) by taking part in the television series, (2) by offering periodic articles to be published as supplements to those supplied by the CbN Program, and (3) by taking part in periodic forums to be hosted by the college.

c. The Audience:
   If selected to participate, SBCC will hold a news conference with the local law enforcement officials noted above. All have been notified and have agreed to cooperate fully. In addition, notices will be sent to all local service clubs inviting their participation. The Director will be available to speak to these organizations at their pleasure. Posters will be placed in shop windows throughout the community, and newspaper ads will be developed to introduce the program. Local radio and television stations have also offered to cooperate, and a short television ad will be produced for our local cable television station to run several times each day.

The audience, then, is expected to be composed of the broadest possible sampling of the Santa Barbara community population. Many will be interested because they have been the victim of criminal activity, or because a friend has been involved. Still others will be concerned because of recent news stories related to an increase in the local burglary rate or an increase in the rate of heroin addiction locally. Our local district attorney has indicated that there is a strong correlation between these two. The question of rape has also generated much interest in the community. The inmates of local prison facilities (both State and Federal) will also be invited to participate, both as a part of the audience and, where possible, as principals in videotape productions. Their views will be particularly interesting as they represent a distinctive community of criminal justice "clients" within our larger community.

d. The Personnel:

We propose Dr. Peter O. Haslund, Associate Professor of Political Science, as Director. Mr. John Kay, Associate Professor of Political Science, will teach the associated credit course, which will be known as Political Science 13, Society, The Citizen and the Law, and carry three semester units of credit. Non-credit offerings will, also, be offered through the College's extensive and diverse Adult Education Program in the Continuing Education Division, under Dr. Joseph Bagnall, Assistant Dean. Funding is also requested for part-time secretarial assistance and a student research assistant.

e. The Role of the Humanities Faculty:

Faculty members from the humanities will be invited to participate actively in both open forums and television discussions. Those already contacted (in history and philosophy) have indicated an eager interest in a sustained participation, both in terms of program planning and execution.

f. Other Institutional Resources:
   The SBCC Learning Center is equipped with videotape playback equipment so as to facilitate repeated viewing (or primary viewing for those families not subscribing to cable television) of the programs produced under this program.

g. The Community Resources:
   A number of these have already been identified above including the promise of cooperation from both local radio and television stations, and the local cable television service. In addition, Dr. Haslund has received assurances of cooperation from our local district attorney, the Santa Barbara Chief of Police, the Santa Barbara County sheriff, the public defender, two municipal court judges, and one superior court judge. The major local newspaper, the SANTA BARBARA NEWS PRESS, has also indicated a willingness to support such a project and has carried previous courses by newspaper including the current one on Moral Choices.

h. Role of Materials Developed by CbN:
   As much as possible, the articles supplied by CbN will be supplemented by local experts who will either contrast their views with those of the CbN author, or, what is more likely, attempt to show the relevance of these articles to local reality. It is one thing to speak of an "urban crime problem" or "rape in America" and quite another to demonstrate that this urban crime happens in downtown Santa Barbara despite our best efforts, and that rape is a frequent visitor to our community. This relationship will be established through newspaper articles as well as the weekly television programs, and is seen as vital to what we envision as a meaningful and impactful community effort.

Re: National Endowment For The Humanities
Subject: Letter In Support Of Grant Application

Gentlemen:

I understand that Santa Barbara City College is considering applying for a grant from the National Endowment For The Humanities which will focus on crime and the justice system in America.

Crime has and will continue to be one of the most important domestic issues facing the American people in the coming years. Our prior and current solutions to the crime problem are obviously not working, and a sense of frustration tends to focus the blame on the professionals that work within the system.

In contrast to those who would seek panaceas and scapegoats, there is a growing realization that no satisfactory solution will ever be found that does not involve the community. The concept of neighborhood anticrime programs and neighborhood justice centers has had proven results. In other words, a community that marshals its energies in the recognition that the problem belongs to the community and cannot be solved outside of it is a community on its way to dealing with crime.

All available evidence suggests that an important anticrime tool is an aware and informed public. It is amazing to me how uninformed and unaware the general public is with reference to this subject except of course for the inflammatory articles and speeches that appear in the media and during elections. I believe that the proposed grant is an important first step in helping this community rationally understand the nature of its problem and some of the steps that can be taken towards its solution.
I urge Santa Barbara City College to support the above-referenced proposal. If I can be of any further assistance in helping to obtain this grant, please do not hesitate to call upon me.

I remain,

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. Miller:

I have been discussing with Mr. Peter Haslund the proposed program, "Crime, Justice and Punishment in America."

I have indicated to Mr. Haslund the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department's interest in supporting this type of program. I don't think there has been any time in recent history when the public was more keenly interested in this subject. Therefore, I would certainly encourage and support involvement in this program; and will make available whatever resources this Department may provide to assist.

Sincerely,

John W. Carpenter

Dear Mr. Miller:

Peter Haslund has suggested I communicate to you my interest in his project on criminal justice in Santa Barbara.

I anticipate the half hour series could be telecast on KEYT if the production were made available on two inch wide tape. Regardless of the availability of the programs I feel the subject matter would be of interest to our viewers by telecasts of discussions and announcements.

I look forward to presenting the information developed by Mr. Haslund to our viewers as soon as available.

Sincerely,

Hal O'Donnell

Mr. Burton P. Miller
Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent-President
Santa Barbara City College
Santa Barbara, California 93109

Dear Burt:

I am extremely pleased that Dr. Peter Haslund has been nominated to apply for the 1977-78 Community College CbN Forums Program Directorship. He will have the support and be given the encouragement of the Humanities' departments in advancing the humanities' programming within the community and at our college. We could not ask for a more talented and sensitive person to do the job. We have been able to work easily and in full cooperation with Dr. Haslund on past occasions. He has shown in many ways his interest and belief in the value of the humanities -- in his classroom discussions and lectures, in his weekly TV program, in his Presidency of the Board of Trustees of the Unitarian Church, in his speeches to various organizations in the community, and in his personal conversations and counselling of students.

I have no doubt that he will be an excellent Director and I have no hesitation in recommending him to the position.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Eisenberg:

This is to inform you that Santa Barbara City College will offer a Community Cbn Forum and a Cbn course for at least one semester beyond the proposed grant period, i.e., Summer and Fall, 1977. Non-credit forums will be offered through our Continuing Education Division and our current course, Political Science 13, Society, the Citizen, and the Law, will be offered as a 3-unit credit course tied in with the Cbn Program.
